Bio

Born in 1948, John Adduci is a lifetime resident of Chicago, IL. For over thirty years, he has worked from Sedgwick Studio; a former Chicago Transit Authority substation in Chicago's Old Town neighborhood. As an internationally recognized artist, craftsman, and fabricator, public sculpture is Adduci's professional expertise. Clients include private collectors, government agencies, public sculpture gardens and collections, city and state organizations, and educational institutions including the Lincoln Park Zoo, Chicago Children's Museum, and Universities of Illinois at Chicago and Urbana-Champaign.

ARTIST STATEMENT

Sculpture is an on-the-street experience with art. It excites intuition to explore and, with power and audacity, challenges our right to take up space. By proximity, outdoor sculpture confronts, creates dialogue, and educates.
